PRICE TWO CENTS

INJURED BY FALL

Charles Huffman Victim of Accident in Tearing Down School Building.

Charles B. Huffman was seriously injured about 5:30 o'clock Tuesday evening while assisting in tearing down the old school high school building. This is the first accident that has occurred in connection with the construction of the new school building.

Mr. Huffman, with several other men, was working on the roof on the east side of the building when the accident occurred. The laths and ceiling had been torn away from that part of the building and it was thought that the rafters were not sufficiently safe for the workmen and Mr. Huffman was attempting to lay a walk across the rafters, using the girders as the principal supports. He requested one of his fellow employees to hand him a heavy board which he desired to use in the construction of the platform, and walked over the rafters to get it. As he was returning with the plank one of the rafters gave way, and he fell to the floor below, a distance of about fifteen feet.

Several workmen soon reached him and when it was found that he was injured Dr. L. B. Hill was immediately called. An examination showed that his collar bone was broken and that he was injured slightly internally. His left thumb was also dislocated and he received several other scratches and bruises about his body. He was removed to the city hospital where his injuries were dressed by Drs. Graessle, Hill and Luckey.

Mr. Huffman had been employed as engineer of the hoisting engine which will be operated when the new building is erected, but as that engine will not be needed for several weeks, he was assisting about the building in other capacities. A local contractor stated Tuesday before the accident occurred that it would be necessary to exercise the greatest degree of care in tearing down the old building, as the walls were very weak and there would be danger of them falling as soon as the supports were taken away. He said that few people realized the great danger there was in using the old building as it was very unsafe, especially in several parts of the building.

Mrs. Miller, a returned missionary from Korea, will lecture in the Presbyterian church Friday evening, May 21, at 8 o'clock. The public generally is invited, and especially the missionary societies of the other churches.

COMMITTEES

Getting Everything Ready for Big Jubilee.

The committee of eighteen, having in charge the general arrangements for the Fourth-of-July celebration, report that everything is progressing nicely. The sub-committees have made favorable reports. The finance committee reported that their work was not yet complete, but that they were making satisfactory progress. There is still a considerable amount of money to be raised, but the committee expects to push their work during the next week and have most of it finished by the next meeting, Monday night.

An amusement committee has been appointed to look after the special attractions and see that there is an abundance of popular amusements for young and old. It is the intention to get the latest that is going, as the best is never considered any too good for Seymour.

One of the things that is occupying the attention of the committee just now is the arrangement for an abundance of music. This will be a prominent feature of the parade and there will be music in some part of the city park almost continuously during the afternoon and evening when other attractions are not being given.

During the hours from nine till eleven in the morning, there will be fun of all kinds and a general good time. Meeting and greeting friends and visitors, renewing old acquaintances and making many new ones. Then everybody will be busy telling everybody else "glad-kum."

Major Carter will have his battalion out again, perhaps not later than next week if the weather is favorable, and as there will not be more than a half dozen drills, perhaps, each uniformed man will see the necessity of attending every drill. Six good drills, with every man in line, will be worth three times as much as a dozen drills with only half the men out.

From now on make it a point to talk "Jubilee" to some one every day if it is only at home in your own family circle, for there is where many of the best and most practical ideas for the parade and other entertainments will originate. The committee is receiving a number of suggestions for the parade every day, and many of these are being considered. The plans are wanted which will get the most people interested and which can be carried out with the best division of labor. The idea is to get many to work, each with more or less responsibility, and not to impose upon any more people than possible with more than they have time to do well.

It is possible that several factories and business men and organizations will take upon themselves to have some interesting feature in the parade which may call some attention to their own business. The Independent Order of Red Men have several plans under way, and other lodges will probably do likewise. All trains run to Seymour on the Fourth and fifth.

CIRCUS DAY

Robinson's Shows Will Be In Seymour Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is circus day and the big Robinson's shows will arrive at an early hour over the B. & O. S-W. and preparations will start immediately for the exhibition in Seymour. The Robinson's Famous Show is a big three-ring circus, museum and menagerie. Their program is second to none, containing many features and novelties not to be seen with other tented organizations.

Particular stress is laid upon the fact that these shows have more trained wild animals than any other show on the road. They are exhibited in an immense steel arena and include Captain Ricard's group of African foreign-bred lions, Madame Loie's beautiful performing leopards, the comical Russian black bears, the Robinson elephants, the only bareback riding lion and many other features of this class.

In the circus part of the program there are male and female riders, daring aerialists and trapeze artists, nifty tight-wire artists, equilibrists, funny clowns and many additional interesting acts. Nothing has been left undone to make the show one of par excellence from start to finish.

The exhibition will be given on West Second street, where the big tent will be pitched. Two performers will be given here, one at two o'clock in the afternoon and another in the evening at 7:30 o'clock. The doors will be open an hour earlier so that an opportunity may be had to visit the menagerie and hear the grand concert.

The big street parade will leave the show grounds at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning and will cover the principal streets.

COMET DAY

Earth Passes Through Tail of Comet Tonight.

[By W. F. Peter, Jr.]

Today, May 18, Halley's Comet will reach its nearest approach to the earth. Two events will happen during the day, with a slight interval between them. The head of the comet will pass across the face of the sun, making what is known as a "transit"; and the earth will pass through the comet's tail. The first of these events will occur when it is about 10 o'clock p. m. in Seymour; but as the sun is set at that hour, it will not be visible here; in fact, nowhere in this country. The entrance of the earth into the comet's tail will come slightly later. If the tail were exactly straight, the two events would be practically simultaneous. The tail, however, curves backward, so that it will probably be midnight before any contact takes place. The time cannot be more exactly stated, as the amount of curvature of the tail is not definitely known.

Scientists are agreed that there will be no perceptible effect upon the earth resulting from its passage through the tail. The latter is composed of matter in so thin a state that the air is exceedingly dense by comparison. Our atmosphere will thus act as a shield and prevent the light gases of which the tail is composed, from reaching the earth's surface. We do not pass through the center of the tail, but move toward its upper edge, where it is not so wide; hence the passage will not be of so long duration as it would otherwise be. As it is, the earth will be immersed several hours in the tail. If there were no moon some optical effects might then be noticed as, for example, a faint glow in the sky. The moon does not set until about 2:45 o'clock a. m., and by that time such an effect may be visible to us and continue after dawn. The passage through the tail of the comet of 1861 produced a strange yellowish glow in the heavens by the effect of the gases upon the sunlight.

The most important of these events is the first, namely: the transit of the sun. At such time it may be possible to gain some idea of the exact nature of the comet's head. The transit is a most rare occurrence and has not happened before in the case of Halley's comet, at least not since the year 240 B.C. The probabilities are overwhelmingly against such an event as will occur today. Only three bodies ever transit the sun: they are the moon, Venus and Mercury. These events, too, are rare in the case of the two planets. Mercury will transit in November, 1914, and Venus not until June, 2004.

On next Monday there will be an eclipse of the moon by the earth's shadow. It will be visible if the sky is clear in this vicinity. The moon will enter the shadow about 9 o'clock p. m., and the eclipse will be total.

League Social.

The Epworth League of the German M. E. church gave a very delightful social at the home of Dr. and Mrs. G. G. Graessle on West Tipton street, Thursday evening. One of the special features of the program was the reading given by W. T. Patton, of Crothersville.

Several farmers from the vicinity of Duddytown came in this morning with wagons and teams to haul out poles for the new extensions of their telephone lines. A carload of poles had just been placed on the sidetrack here for them.

ADVICE TO WOMEN.

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact the whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Banish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucuo-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucuo-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucuo-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucuo-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucuo-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail order filled. It may be obtained only at our store,—The Rexall Store. Andrews-Schwenk Drug Co.

He Broke His Parole.

Indianapolis, May 18.—When sentenced to ten years' imprisonment at Fort Leavenworth for counterfeiting, by Judge Anderson in federal court, Robert Jackson confessed he had murdered a man named Edward Chester in Laurel, Ky., several years ago and was sentenced to the Kentucky state prison for twenty-one years. He was out of prison on parole at the time of his arrest for counterfeiting.

Note Indicates Double Suicide.

Whiting, Ind., May 18.—"I hope when you find this little note in this bottle you won't be surprised, but we were companions all our lives and decided to die together. Goodbye wicked world." This note, signed by Florence Roy and Daisie Barnes and scribbled on a piece of wrapping paper with a lead pencil, was found along the lake shore. The police are investigating.

T. E. Neer, advance agent of the Boston Bloomers, was in this city this morning making arrangements for their base ball team to appear here next Tuesday.

A Boston man has been placed by an odd will in possession of property left by an eccentric woman, and is to enjoy the same as long as his good care keeps her three pet cats alive. With 27 lives thus standing between him and property loss, he ought to feel reasonably safe.

Texas has invented a new use for cottonseed, grinding it into flour and making brown bread from it. As we have already cottonseed lard oil, cottonseed olive oil, cottonseed cattle and chicken feed, cotton near-silk, it looks as if that plant were aspiring to feed us well as clothe the entire world.

It is not often that medals are given to "soldiers of peace" for efficient service. A short time ago, however, three of the members of the New York street cleaning department were so honored—a foreman, a sweeper and a driver. When one considers the risk to health which these men undergo in their daily work, their bravery and usefulness cannot be gainsaid.

Crossing the Atlantic by spending less than three days upon the water is now a possibility. Not that the big lines are smashing whole days from their records, but the eastern terminal of the railroad recently completed across Newfoundland is only about one thousand miles from the coast of Ireland. It is but a short distance from Cape Breton to Newfoundland, and a half-rail, half-water journey from New York to London will be attractive to those who suffer from sea sickness.

In front of the Capitol building at Bismarck, North Dakota, there is a statue to stand a heroic statue of the remarkable Indian woman, Sakajawea, who was guide and interpreter for the Lewis and Clark expedition across the Rocky Mountains in 1804. The women of North Dakota have raised the money for the statue, not only in recognition of the splendid services of the brave squaw, who repeatedly risked her life to save her companions and the precious records of the party, and who cared for her little child during the many hardships of that historic journey, but also on the ground that Sakajawea "was the first North Dakotan whose name was enrolled on the pages of history."

A New York rabbi has protested against cheap and vulgar misrepresentation of Jews on the stage and in the comic press, and advises a campaign against it, pointing to the good results of a similar movement among Irish leaders against the stale and witless caricatures of alleged Irish types. It is high time racial caricature on the stage or in the press should be "reformed altogether." Everything about such caricatures is so ancient, so pointless, so devoid of reason, art, legitimate fun, that their complete retirement would please all, including the manufacturers of the ghostly jokes. Recently one of our cleverest comic weeklies published an extraordinary list of tabooed subjects. It included the mother-in-law, the summer girl's engagement, the small boy and the suitor and other antiques too numerous to mention. The clean sweep will be grateful, but it should extend to every variety of malicious and mean racial caricature. Let our humorists try fresh fields and new pastures. Let them exercise their ingenuity, their imagination, their power of observation. Life is full and interesting, and while there may be nothing new under the sun there are numberless things that seem new and give us a sense of freshness and unexpectedness. Professional entertainers and comic writers must move with their age, as the rest of us do. Stagnation cannot be tolerated even in the art of merry feeling.

Nations cannot be indicted. Can the college men of any nation be indicted wholesale? It appears that a report based on nation-wide data is shortly to be submitted in which American college men will be charged with lawlessness, indifference to the moral code and other painful shortcomings. Even college presidents are not to "scape whipping." They, it seems, are not always willing to enforce the law against rich and influential students. The report will make interesting reading, but will it contain any surprises for the student of philosophy, ethics and harmonious education? Is it not a truth iterated and reiterated by all the great thinkers, from Plato down to Bacon and Spencer, that mere "education," or education of the intellect, does not make for morality? The intellect, as Spencer says, supplies tools, but does not determine conduct. It guides us to the ends we would realize, but it does not control the moral quality of those ends. It gives efficiency, but to rascals as well as to noble and upright citizens. The building of character, the education of the emotions and the will, moral culture will never take care of itself. It is not a by-product of scientific training. Educated men will not commit the same classes of crimes as the uneducated, but if they have not been subjected to right moral influences in the home, in school and college, in their general social environment, they will not resist temptation any more than the illiterates. So profoundly true is this that it accounts for the recent movement in favor of definite religious and moral training in school and college. Conventions and conferences have, in fact, anticipated the report of the Oberlin Association.

WAS A NERVY JUDGE.

James P. Belford Rendered a Decision with Shotgun on Knees. Judge James P. Belford, formerly of the Supreme Court of Colorado, whose death occurred Jan. 7, is mourned as the last of the "old guard" which has survived that State's earlier days. As a campaign orator, a judge and a statesman he was a remarkably brilliant and well-rounded man. That he was not wanting in courage is illustrated by the following anecdote told by Judge E. T. Wells, his colleague on the territorial supreme bench, says the Green Bay.

"He was a man of nerve, who would take a chance with his life in following out a course he believed to be right.

"I saw him sitting on the bench in a law suit at Georgetown with a double-barreled shotgun across his knees. I forget the title of the case now, but it was one involving large interests in a wealthy mine of the district. Both sides had engaged the services of noted gun men to make a demonstration in the town and later in his courtroom. Judge Belford had given a great deal of study and deliberation to the issues raised and he was satisfied of the soundness of his decision.

"It had got noised around that on that particular day he would read his decision and the little courtroom was packed with partisans of the litigants. Belford took his place on the bench, adjusted the shotgun on his knees, unfolded his manuscript and began to read. His judgment was entered on the record, court adjourned and there was no bloodshed, but before he entered the room he did not know but that they would carry him out feet first."

A Dr. Johnson Story.

Dr. Johnson had some ideas on education, especially on that diversion known as "learning a piece by heart." One day Mrs. Gastrel set a little girl to repeat to him Cato's soliloquy, which she went through very correctly. The doctor, after a pause, asked the child, "What was to bring Cato to an end?" She said it was a knife. "No, my dear, it was not so." "My Aunt Polly said it was a knife." "Why, Aunt Polly's knife may do, but it was a dagger, my dear." He then asked her the meaning of "bane" and "antidote," which she was unable to give. Mrs. Gastrel said, "You cannot expect so young a child to know the meaning of such words." He then said, "My dear, how many pence are there in sixpence?" "I cannot tell, sir," was the half terrified reply. On this, addressing himself to Mrs. Gastrel, he said, "Now, my dear lady, can anything be more ridiculous than to teach a child Cato's soliloquy who does not know how many pence there are in sixpence?"

GUARDING THE KING'S CASTLE

Precautions at Windsor for Safety of Sovereign and Royal Visitors.

The presence of King Manuel at Windsor Castle has been the cause of considerable quiet energy at Scotland yard, and known anarchists have been watched for at the ports, and those whose presence is known in this country have been shadowed. The precautions, however, taken for the safety of King Edward are so nearly perfect that little remains to be done in the actual guardianship of Windsor Castle.

For an unauthorized person to gain an entrance into one of the King's palaces is almost an impossibility. It has been done, but the number of times could be almost counted on the fingers of the hand.

Within the walls of Windsor Castle are treasures of priceless value, and even if the court is not in residence no one can enter without his presence being known to the police.

Although the royal residences are so well guarded at all times the guard is strongest when a foreign sovereign pays a state visit to this country. Then almost every other man is a detective within a mile or two of Windsor Castle, and no one who is not well known has the slightest chance of getting within easy reach of the royal apartments.

When the King is in residence at Windsor the guards are doubled. Instead of one man marching up and down with bayonet fixed between sentry box and sentry box there are two.

Then there are Metropolitan policemen on duty at each gateway, as well as royal gatekeepers in scarlet and gold livery. In addition to that there are plain clothes detectives and night watchmen.

A lunatic seldom gets further than Henry VIII's gateway at Windsor. The little police office is just inside the gate, and here is officially recorded every day anything of note that takes place within the precincts of the castle.

A few yards inside the gateway are also the quarters of the officer who is in command of the castle guard. Telephones are installed all over the castle and the different entrances are connected with the main switchboard near the equeries' entrance.

If a paper knife were taken out of the castle today it would be missed to-morrow. Every treasure and piece of furniture in Windsor Castle is entered into huge books and photographs are kept of all the most valuable articles.

The sentries were always provided with ball cartridge until a guardsman fired three bullets into a stone elephant on the East Terrace of Windsor Castle, which he mistook for a ghost in the mists of the early morning. Now they have to depend on their bayonets.

It is very seldom that thefts take place at royal residences. The police have power to search all bags or parcels being conveyed from the royal palaces. Many years ago a sentry at Windsor Castle managed to hook down a valuable gold watch and chain from one of the royal apartments with his bayonet on the end of his rifle, but he was quickly found out and punished.

A night watchman goes on duty inside the castle at Windsor every night and comes off in the morning. In case of fire he would at once give the alarm and in a very few minutes the royal firemen and castle guard would be on the spot and all entrances would be closed and guarded. The same system prevails at the chief of the other royal residences.

There used to be sentries at Frogmore in the early part of the last century, but there are none now. Around the Royal Mausoleum at Frogmore, where Queen Victoria's remains repose, the Metropolitan police are on duty all through the twenty-four hours.

The penalty for a soldier failing to perform his duty when on guard outside royal residences is so severe that there are very few cases indeed on record of men having to be taken off their posts.

Two hours on and four hours off duty are the allotted times in the twenty-four hours round, and men are very seldom discovered asleep. When the court is in residence at the chief royal palaces the strain of duty is very severe at times.

The royal household police of course take turns at night and day duty, and when important functions are on they have a very busy time. In addition to the soldiers, police and detectives there are, of course, the royal servants and lodge keepers, who know a stranger at once.

Even if a visitor got through the strong cordon around royal residences he would still have to face the six foot footmen in scarlet and gold who sit just inside the chief entrances. Near at their hand is a telephone, and if they have the least suspicion of a visitor the police are acquainted in a trice.

A stranger would have the greatest difficulty, even if he successfully eluded the hall porter, to find his way about Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace.

THE FRECKLED BOY.

He Lived Before This Age of Pedagogics, But—

Where is the schoolboy of sixty years ago? Many of us can still recall him sturdy, tough, freckled, with his hair in tufts and stains behind his ear that await the Saturday night wash rag with distrust and deep hostility. In rural districts he trudged to school and willingly enough with dark designs on birds' nests and incautious squirrels. In town he fought his way in triumph or took black eyes to show the pedagogue. He was a healthy, human boy, and his stained jacket was a protest against books even though his ragged trousers presented no casemate to the quivering birch. He learned to spell, if with difficulty at least as efficaciously as the anaemic high school products of today. He mastered the mysterious proposition that five and five is ten and that seven subtracted from twenty leaves thirteen; he scaled the heights of simple geography, realized that George Washington had once crossed the Delaware in a comparatively small boat, and after throwing contemptuous mud at the old schoolhouse went back to the farm, to stay there or to make of himself what God had willed.

From this generation the great men of the land were drawn. The statesmen, the orators, the jurists, the law-makers, the journalists, the captain of industry and all the rest of them issued from that source. Some of the schools were free, a much smaller number was maintained by neighborhood contribution, but all of them imparted the most primitive knowledge and stopped short of decorative elaborations at the expense of the property holder and the taxpayer. Nevertheless, the fruit of those ancient institutions will bear comparison with the high school products of today.

Now we hear that thousands of dollars must be appropriated, from the public fund of course, to buy spectacles for afflicted, or threatened school children. We hear that they must have examining physicians and nurses and all the arts of sanitation provided for their use. They have soared far above the old curriculum. They are learning the "New Caesar," becoming familiar with botany and astronomy and French dancing, the use of the globes and modelling in clay. As the Hon. Champ Clark complained only a week or so ago, "the education of our children, at public expense, be it understood, has passed into the realm of luxury. What becomes of the children so educated?" we do not want to know. The facts are before us; why pursue the consequences?

We are getting around to spectacles and examining physicians and nurses, and we see in easy view the logical beneficiaries of overcoats and wraps free lunches, "gum shoes," umbrellas, pensions in the end—who knows? Let the bloated taxpayer groan! All this for education. Some of us still regret the freckled boy, but we are old and in the path of progress as obstructions.—New York Sun.

Old Horse Relief.

The tragedy of the abuse of old work horses who have outlived the best years of their usefulness has received far more attention in late years than formerly, and in this awakening of humane feeling Boston has taken a gratifying part of leadership. The annual work horse parade has been copied, with excellent intent and results, in other cities, and it is probable that the newer effort of the association which promotes those parades in the interests of the work horse, the movement to prevent the abuse of age-afflicted work horses, will similarly spread beyond the Boston district—as, indeed, it already has to some extent as a letter from the association's agent shows. The issue is particularly pertinent in large cities, where the sight of old horses reduced to hard work and short feed and care at the close of a lifetime of faithful service is a pathetic commonplace. It is less common in Boston than in some other large cities, for which good fact we may thank the agencies for humane treatment of animals, which have long been active here, and the general disposition on the part of owners of horses to prevent their animals from falling into such dire straits. A merciful man is merciful to his beast; and thereby he indulges his better nature.—Boston Advertiser.

The Irishman's Remedy.

The Hon. Joseph H. Choate, formerly our Ambassador to England, tells the following story, crediting the same to a political speech made by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman: A head of a house had complained to three friends—an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scot—that his servant broke a great deal of China.

The matter-of-fact Englishman gave the short bit of practical advice, "Dismiss him."

"Take it out of his wages," spoke the thrifty Scot.

Objection to the latter course was made on the ground that the wages were less than the amount of the damage. The Irishman at once came to the rescue with:

"Then raise his wages."—Judge.

Automobiles and Roads.

It is stated in connection with the meeting of automobile owners in Washington to secure Federal regulation of automobiles, that William A. Thibodeau, general counsel for the American Automobile Association, criticised the Vermont law most severely. He said it was impossible to go into the State without violating the law, and expressed the opinion that, in view of the fact that Vermont does $14,000,000 worth of business yearly, much of it with outsiders, it could afford to amend its automobile law.

On the other hand, it would probably be impossible to compute the expense to the State growing out of the damaging of our highways through the excessive rate of speed at which many of the visitors drive their auto cars; and it is only fair that they should bear some portion of the expense of repairing the same. Restriction of speed was imposed at the outset almost wholly as a matter of protection to people. Developments in connection with the effect of excessive speed on macadam and other modern roads have shown that restriction must now be imposed also as a protection for our permanent highways.

When our visitors realize all this they will appreciate the fact that Vermont's auto legislation is simply what all States will be forced to adopt sooner or later, if their roads are to be preserved.—Burlington Free Press.

A Church in a Rock.

In the quaint old German town of Oberstein an ancient church stands built in the great rock rising from the river. The front of the building is of stone, but the church itself is hollowed out of the rock and penetrates far into its heart. Tradition says that in the fourteenth century the Count of Oberstein, one of the old robber barons, fell deeply in love with a beautiful young lady, the daughter of a neighboring knight.

His brother also sought the fair maiden's hand and the two suitors had a violent quarrel. The upshot was that the count flung his hapless brother from the top of his castle wall, high up the precipitous cliff. Repenting of his awful deed, the count vowed that he would build a church where his brother's body first touched the ground. He did so, excavating the church in the rock; and tradition goes on to say a miraculous spring of clear water sprang from the crag as a token that heaven was appeased. This curious church is now the only Protestant place of worship in the town.—Wide World Magazine.

The Din Did It.

The first performance of "Elektra" in New York, with the fainting fit at the end of Mme. Mazarin, was being discussed at the Lambs'.

"I suppose you know what happened once at an 'Elektra' performance?" said Victor Herbert.

"Well, a doctor had a deaf patient, and advised him to go to hear 'Elektra' and sit near the trombones.

"The noise the doctor said, 'has cured several incurable cases of deafness, and there is no reason why it shouldn't cure you, too.'"

"The patient accepted this advice. He even bought two front-row tickets, and took the doctor with him to the famous opera.

"As the two men sat side by side, the patient, when the din was at its very loudest, shrieked in the doctor's ear:

"Doctor, oh, doctor, I can hear!"

"But the doctor took no notice of the glad cry.

"Doctor, you have saved me!" the patient repeated, "I can hear again!"

"But the doctor sat cold and impassive. He had become deaf himself."—Washington Star.

Word Most Often Misspelled.

"Oblige," of all the words in the English language, is the one most frequently misspelled. This assertion is made by W. Stewart Thomson in a new edition of his "Public Examination Spelling Key," and is based upon practical experience and from evidence provided by the papers of competitors in civil service examinations.

"Not 5 per cent. of educated Englishmen," Mr. Thomson adds, "spell correctly, even in standard books and high class newspaper, the simple word 'repellent.' The English language is a living and growing thing and dictionaries as a rule are about fifty years behind the times. There is perhaps no more common fallacy with the experienced writer than the idea that in these days of free education and strict Government inspection, 'every schoolboy' can spell all the fairly common English words and that a spelling book should, therefore, contain only such as are of considerable difficulty."—London Daily Mail.

Paper Clothes Sure Thing.

Some time ago the report was circulated in this country of the discovery of a process to make clothes from paper. The new cloth was named xylolin, and the discovery was credited to a Saxon. The American consuls in Saxony made an investigation of the report and found a really serviceable cloth made from paper wood fibre. The discovery is the result of years of pains-taking study and experimenting, and is regarded as a remarkable and important achievement.—Grit.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In a short time a bunch came and it bothered me so much at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. Huxey, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Lost Votes.

A parliamentary candidate lost quite a number of votes by making a generous promise to his own wife. He promised his better half that if he were successful at the poll he would buy her a new sealskin coat and hat to match. His wife was so pleased with this kindly offer that she at once went and told all her lady friends about it. Every lady to whom this piece of news was imparted, of course, said to the candidate's wife at once, "Oh, how very nice, dear!" but equally, of course, immediately went off home to her husband and said: "Take care you don't vote for Mr. A., dear. Fancy that stuck up Mrs. A. in a new sealskin while my old one is so shabby!"—London Express.

THE IDIOCY OF MAN.

Health-Giving Possibilities of the Back Yard Unknown to Him.

When there steals over a man the disquieting feeling that he is much too fat, or, on the contrary, that Cassius wasn't in it with him when it came to utter and absolute leanness, his first impulse is to leap for the nearest gymnasium, little realizing that that for which he seeks lies in his own back lot. How many men know that cutting the grass, sodding the lawn, digging the weeds, watering the flowers, beating the carpets and cleaning the windows are far better exercises than pulling the pulleys, which is futile and accomplisheth nothing, or climbing the horizontal bar or swinging on the rings, or punching the bag, or beating the handball, or any other old thing that men do at great cost with little return to themselves in gymnasiums.

Nine men out of ten will pay gymnasium and instructors' fees to punch a big bag full of air against a nasty, noisy platform in a dingy, dirty gymnasium, while a noble Persian rug lies waiting on the line in the fresh evening air right behind his own house.

There is no better exercise for adipose tissue than reaching over and picking weeds out of the lawn and back lot and side lot which every man should have. Not a lawn but that is not full of these little dockweed which should not be there.

But Mr. Worldly Wiseman pays a man to take his best of wholesome exercise for him while he spends an hour doing the hardest kind of valueless labor trying to touch his toes with his fingers on a hard floor of a dead-air gymnasium. If he dug up a few weeds he would get the fresh air and would bring himself close to earth, which means too much to man. For the human race is like Antaeus, the oftener it touches earth the stronger it becomes. There is no occupation so healthy as turning the soil. The sod yields oxygen which the body needs. There is no oxygen in the half-mopped floor of the dingy gymnasiums in the downtown district, but, oddly enough, Mr. Worldly Wiseman refuses the health that is at hand to seek it in far lands or woods where it never can be found.

Spending an hour lifting his hands high above his head and bending them to touch his fingers to his toes, "is good for the abdominal muscles," the stout citizen will pompously inform you.

It may be better than unloading steins. But compared to reaching up to nail pictures on the wall or to wash the topmost pane of the window, it is nothing at all. There is virtue for the abdominal muscles in reaching high up in the air, but not any more than there is in standing on the very tip of a house ladder and draping window curtains for half a day.

FORMER ATHLETES.

Sports of Canary Islanders May Have Surpassed Modern Games.

In this age of athletics one might think that no people ever showed so much interest in feats of muscular might and skill as those who have perfected football; but modern games, and even the games of the Greeks at Olympia, may have been more than matched by the sports of peoples now held in light esteem. We have the accounts of excellent authorities for the contention that the athletic training of Canary Islanders makes even the college giants of to-day seem weak and effeminate.

These islanders came into subjection to Spain about the time Columbus discovered America. The conquest was due solely to the superiority of European weapons, and not to better skill and prowess. Native soldiers were trained athletes developed under a system that held athletic sports to be an important business, like military drill.

Spanish chronicles have left accounts of sports of the islanders. From babyhood they were trained to be brisk in self-defense. As soon as they could toddle the children were pelted with mud balls, that they might learn how to protect themselves. When they were boys stones and wooden darts were substituted for bits of clay.

In this rough school they acquired the rudiments of warfare which enabled them, during their wars, to catch in their hands the arrows shot from their enemies' crossbows.

After the conquest of the Canaries a native of the islands was seen at Seville who, for a silver piece, let a man throw at him as many stones as he pleased from a distance of eight paces. Without moving his left foot he avoided every stone.

Another native used to defy any one to hurl an orange at him with so great rapidity that he could not catch it. Three men tried this, each with a dozen oranges, and the islander caught every orange. As a further test, he hit his antagonists with each of the oranges.

To Save the Birds.

That is a fine idea of Mrs. Maud Ballington Booth's—to have people save the birds by letting the cats during nesting time. The tiniest bell will give the fledglings warning of the characteristic crafty feline approach, and its sound would be too small really to disturb the humans. Cats are kept to prey upon mice and rats, and, of course, the bell would warn these pests, too. But if it were worn only for a few weeks it would make little difference with the rodents, while millions of harmless bird lives would be spared.

It is one of the easiest things in the world to convince a coward that discretion is the better part of valor.

THEIR PATH LAID OUT.

Police in Germany Find Every Possible Contingency Provided For.

It has been said that in Germany it takes one-half of the nation to control the other. Certainly there are immense numbers of police and innumerable regulations to put in force. "Verbotten" (It is forbidden) seems almost the national motto. Berlin Park is covered with notice boards, all forbidding something. For instance, you cannot sit down on any seat you like. Some seats are marked "For Children Only," others "For Adults Only." There are separate paths for cyclists, pedestrians, riders, light vehicles and heavy vehicles, for children and for ladies walking alone. There are notices forbidding people to walk on the grass and others forbidding dogs to walk on the grass. The German dog is said to be so thoroughly accustomed to obeying police regulations that any dog found on the grass is bound to be a foreign dog.

The German policeman carries a small library of books inside his blouse. He has to make innumerable inquiries and reports. No one can engage a servant without supplying the police with particulars as to her name, age, nationality, color of her hair, complexion, state of her teeth, the period she is engaged for and many other points. She, too, has to send in a report. Another report has to be given when she is dismissed, telling where she is going and giving all the personal details over again. When a householder changes his place of residence the police have to be informed of his income, his future abode, the number of his family and so forth.

One is forbidden to leave the front door unlocked, to play the piano after 11, to cross a bridge on the wrong side, to "ramble about in droves after dark," to shoot with a crossbow or blowpipes in the street. Bulldogs and other large dogs must always make their public appearances in muzzles and be led by a leash not longer than 16 inches, and they must walk not on the pavement, but in the street. If your dog barks in the street after 10 o'clock a policeman soon runs up, shouting: "That—dog—must—not—bark." If your children are making a noise in the street he soon lets you know that, too. And all these crimes have a definite fine. Every contingency is provided against in the bulky manual of police regulations that every town issues. The manual, by the way, points out precisely what breakages you may compel your servant to pay for and what you may not.

WAS NO EASY MARK.

Fine Words Had No Effect on Old Indian Chief.

The recent visit of the Crow Indian chiefs to the White House to see President Taft concerning the disposition of their lands has recalled a good story of old Shah-bah-skong, head chief of the Mille Lac, the memory of whom is still preserved in the Interior Department.

The chief took all his warriors to defend Fort Ripley in 1862, and for this act of bravery the Secretary of the Interior, the Governor and the Legislature of Minnesota promised the Indians that they should have the special care of the government and never be compelled to move from their lands.

A few years later a special agent was sent from Washington to ask the Ojibways to cede their lands and remove to a country north of Leech Lake. The agent called the Indians in council, and said:

"My red brothers, your Great Father has heard how you have been wronged. He said: 'I will send them an honest man.' He looked to the north, the south, the east and the west. When he saw me he said: 'This is the honest man whom I will send to my red children.' Brothers, look at me. The winds of 55 years have blown over my head and silvered it over with gray, and in all that time I have never done wrong to any man. As your friend, I ask you to sign this treaty."

Old Shah-bah-skong sprang to his feet and said: "My friend, look at me! The winds of more than 50 winters have blown over my head and silvered it over with gray, but they have not blown my brains away."

A Little Girl Who Knew.

The young mother, who excused herself for placing her 5-year-old child in school on the ground that she had already exhausted her resources on her progressive offspring, should sympathize deeply with the distracted instructors who are endeavoring to hold their own with the practical children of the day.

The teacher in a certain city school had laid aside the book and was drawing on her imagination for examples in fractions. In the first place this teacher, just out of the normal college, had never in her life gone marketing. And she was absorbed in getting numbers capable of the divisions she had in mind.

"Suppose," she suggested, confidently, "the butcher asks you 42 cents a pound for beef, at that price what would three and three-sevenths pounds come to?"

The scrawny girl to whom this was propounded, who had traveled innumerable times the distance between her home and the grocer's and butcher's, giggled a little—not without contempt. "It wouldn't come to our flat," she stated, decidedly. "Ma'd send me back good and likely if I didn't know better'n to pay that much for beef myself."

Even when a man knows that he's on the wrong track he thinks his train of thought has the right of way.

BREATHING FOR HEALTH.

Proper Way Invaluable to Those Who Practice It.

One of our main faults in breathing is that we take too short a breath. The air goes only to the upper lobes of the lungs, and the lower ones are therefore uncared for. Short breathing is really bad for the health, as it causes a stagnation in the lower part of the lungs. In brushing your clothing, if you took care to remove the dust from the shoulders and neglected to touch the sleeves, the former would remain in excellent condition, while the other parts would soon be eaten away by the moths. It is the same way with the disease germ; if the air does not get down there regularly and stir things up something is going to happen.

Another fault is that of breathing through our mouths. The correct way of breathing is, of course, through the nose, for it is through that organ that nature seeks to protect us from inhaling dust and disease-breeding microbes, it acting as a filter. It also warms the air waves and sends them to the delicate passages properly heated. A person with this bad habit, who has been breathing the air of a heated room, on going to the streets fills the lungs with a sudden rush of cold air, the difference in temperature often being a number of degrees, and the result is a congestion. Should the lungs be in a weakened condition the congestion is often likely to produce disorders of the most dangerous kind.

Nose breathing is also demanded by nature, because the amount of air taken in by this route corresponds to the amount which can normally be sent to the lungs through the air passage in the throat. When you breathe through your mouth you are forcing the air in, as you can notice readily when after a sudden deep breath you get that feeling of "chokiness." Since the value of proper breathing in its beneficial effect on health is quite beyond estimate, all should earnestly seek to attain the greatest possible perfection in the practice of this important art.

NOT IN THE LEAST ALIKE.

Different Ways Taft and Roosevelt Have of Looking at Life.

Externally Taft is everything that Roosevelt is not, writes William Allen White. Taft begins each day by a weary, painful, perfunctory half-hour of gymnastic gyrations—a kind of canned exercise—which, having been opened and devoured, finishes his physical duty for the day. Roosevelt takes his exercise in the open, with the joy of a satyr in it. Roosevelt's mental processes are quick, intuitive and sure. Until he has made up his mind he is a most open-minded person. Taft works it out. He is never too sure to receive new evidence. Taft grapples a proposition, wrestles with it without resting and without fatigue until it is settled or solved. His joy is found at the end of the road. Roosevelt's joy is found in many roads. He wears of monotony, and keeps divers interests in his mind, many things to employ him under the head of unfinished business. If Providence is slow in sending wars and rumors of wars—what ho, for the nature fakirs! Let us be up and doing.

Roosevelt has a marvelous moral sense; he has a detective's nose for finding iniquity in measures. Taft has a prodigious capacity for hard, consecutive work and an instinct for evidence founded on a broad, charitable affection for men, whom he knows as a hunter knows his dogs; and Taft finds the right of things, as Roosevelt finds it, but by a different path. Taft enjoys his meals. Roosevelt, absorbed in work or play, would eat hay and not know it. With Roosevelt culture is like bear hunting, trust fighting, muck raking or fence jumping, a rampant, gorgeous reaction upon his insatiable soul. With Taft culture is a sweet, indefinable mental and moral digestant tincture that colors his soul's eyes so that he may see a delightful world; or, to change the figure, it is an easy garment, a sort of drapery of his spiritual couch, which he wraps about him and lies down to "pleasant dreams."

Did Mrs. Knox Work?

Mrs. Philander C. Knox, Jr., is earnestly denying that she ever was employed in a department store; her mother supports her denial. The owner and employees of the store in question, however, insist that she was on its pay roll, and earned her stipend. Of course, in the absence of documentary proof to the contrary, we are inclined to favor the word of the ladies, for gallantry's sake, if for no other reason. But there is a principle involved which is not affected by the facts at issue. If Mrs. Knox was a saleswoman, or was employed at any other of the world's activities for pay, we can see no reason for denying it. It is not a disgrace, but an honor, to have earned one's bread, even if one has married the son of a Prime Minister, and divorced him, in so doing, from the favor of his father and from an allowance of $400 a month. This is the age of work, the man or woman who earns his or her own living is more to be honored than he or she who—by no virtue in himself or herself, but because his or her father or grandfather worked to good purpose and effect—is enabled to dawdle through life with no more serious interest than the country club or the afternoon tea.

OUR COAL SUPPLY.

Simplifying the Labor of Procuring It Increased the Output.

It was feared at one time that the rate of coal consumption would soon outgrow the rate of production and there was talk of curtailing the use of coal in many industries, says a writer in Lippincott's. But the inventor proceeded to make coal mining machinery which lessened the labor of extracting the raw product from the earth and increased the output tenfold. England to-day bases her hope of extending the period of her profitable coal mining upon the invention of machinery that will compensate for the added cost of deeper mining. In America coal mining machinery has doubled and tripled the output. A coal digger cuts and extracts the coal from its bed as fast as three or four skilled miners could formerly do; it falls automatically upon cars, which swing upward like elevators to the light of day, and deposit their contents into chutes.

Down the sooty mass tumbles to the breakers, where it is pounded and broken into sizes suitable for commerce. Thence it slides on to the washery, and comes out at the other end to be dumped on cars. The cars quickly cross the country to some river or bay, where canal boats are waiting. The transference from the cars to the boats, and from the boats to the wholesale and retail dealers' coal yards is performed automatically. Even when the coal comes into our homes it is shot down chutes into the cellar, and not carried there in buckets and baskets as of old.

And yet, for all this simplifying of labor, this invention of machines to reduce the dust and ashes, nobody likes coal, and we all pray for the time to come when its use may be abolished. It is not a popular article of commerce; it is a clumsy and dirty fuel, and in this age of invention and discovery it seems woefully out of date. It is not new machinery to increase the output that we are longing for, but the discovery of some new method of obtaining heat and power.

Actions of a conceited person always offend sensible people.

Rather Indefinite.

A young Englishman, just arrived in New York, was taken to see the sights of the city by a lady relative. Late in the afternoon at the crossing of two thoroughfares, the lady, feeling a little undecided as to the best route to take to a certain point of interest, asked the young man to go and inquire of one of the policemen who regulated the traffic at this intersection, whether the street cars transferred with the avenue cars.

With his mind confused and addled by a hard day's sightseeing the Englishman pushed his way wearily through the crowd and accosted the policeman.

"No," said the guardian of the peace in reply to the young man's inquiry, and looking down from his superior height upon one whom he deemed to be a stranger, alone and possibly lost in New York, "the street cars don't transfer with the avenue, but I guess I can tell you some other line of cars to take. Where do you want to go?"

"Oh, ah," said the Englishman, deprecatingly, "I really have not the faintest idea."

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

Secretary of State—Otis E. Gully, Danville.

Auditor of State—John E. Reed, Muncie.

Treasurer of State—Jonee Monahan, Orleans.

Attorney General—Finley P. Mount, Crawfordsville.

State Geologist—W. S. Blatchley, Terre Haute.

State Statistician—J. L. Peetz, Kokomo.

Judge Supreme Court, Second District—Oscar H. Montgomery, Seymour.

Judge Supreme Court, Third District—Robert M. Miller, Franklin.

Judge: Appellate Court, First District—Cassius C. Hadley, Danville; Ward H. Watson, Charlestown.

Judges of the Appellate Court, Second District—Daniel W. Comstock, Richmond; Joseph M. Rabb, Williamsport; Harry B. Tuthill, Michigan City.

Oscar Bland, of Linton, has been nominated as the Republican candidate for Congressman from the Second District.

Mr. Bland is one of the leading attorneys of Linton, and has long been a leader in Second District politics. He was a member of the last State Senate and is author of the two-cent-car-fare law.

Mr. Bland was nominated by acclamation and will be elected by a big majority, as it is recognized that he is a man for the people and will carefully safeguard their interests.

In this state where people stand for law enforcement it would, indeed, be a queer situation for John W. Kern to be sent to the United States Senate after his assertion that Senator Shively was elected only after the votes of eight members of the State Legislature were purchased, thus placing an indelible taint upon the position of the junior senator.

The people are demanding that the truth be known regarding this accusation, and that it come from the man who made it.

The developments of the day showed plainly that the Glavis-Garfield-Pinchot combination intends to use Stenographer Kerby for the purpose of bringing out further confidential information which he has in his possession in regard to the affairs of the interior department.

Kerby testified that Mr. Ballinger had planned to supplant F. H. Newell, director of the reclamation service, by R. H. Thompson, former city engineer of Seattle. This testimony furnished the pretext for calling for letters that had passed between Mr. Thompson and Mr. Ballinger and between Secretary Ballinger and George W. Perkins of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The letters showed that Secretary Ballinger had endeavored to get Engineer Thompson to accompany George W. Perkins on an Alaskan trip last summer. This trip as Secretary Ballinger outlined it in confidential communications was for the purpose of exploiting Alaskan mining and railroad properties.

It had been the contention of the Glavis-Pinchot combination that Secretary Ballinger was playing into the hands of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate in the matter of the Cunningham-Alaskan coal claims, and the introduction of this letter is a sharp move on the part of Attorney Brandeis to emphasize this charge.

Young Kerby appeared almost like a fanatic on the witness stand, declaring again and again that he was a martyr to the truth. He is a young man and held his own in fencing with Senator Root and other able lawyers on the committee.

It was after Lawler had accused Garfield and Pinchot of having corrupted the youthful stenographer that the women supporters of the former secretary of the interior and the former forester hissed. This irritated Lawler to such a degree that he turned on them with this remark: "Snakes and geese make noises like that."

When Lawler took the stand all signs pointed to a storm. He was mad and quickly showed it. Mr. Lawler told of his return from Beverly under instructions from the president to prepare the summary and how he had set about his work with Stenographers Kerby and Massey.

"The document was prepared without consultation with a single person under heaven," declared Lawler, with his first display of heat, "and the statement (referring to Kerby's statement) that I consulted with Secretary Ballinger or Finney, or Schwartz, or Dennett, or Pierce, is an absolute and unequivocal falsehood." In explanation why he had ordered the rough drafts of the document burned, Lawler said that he was impressed with the idea that he should leave no chance for anybody to learn anything about the preparation of the document. "For months," he said, "I had been positive that men had been gumshoeing around after me, following every move I made, and I was not going to give them a chance to learn anything if I could help it."

"Who were those gumshoers?" interrupted a member of the committee. "There's one of them," said Lawler, pointing dramatically to Attorney Brandeis. "That man Hapgood (the editor of Collier's) is another, and that man Connelly (a magazine writer)—and to show you the kind they are,

New Yorkers Are Taking the Comet Seriously.

New York, May 18.—Hold tight to a lamp-post or something after dinner tonight as you begin to go through the tail of Halley's comet at the speed of about 2,580 miles a minute. Tonight's the night. Today's news from the comet said that the tail is some place around 24,000,000 miles long and about 17,000,000 miles thick, or thin, and a tail like that is some tail to go through.

While scientists at various spots on earth today were estimating what various things the comet could but would not do to the earth, the unscientific of this city were making guesses of various sorts, facetious in most cases, such as how many million tons of salt would be required to place on the comet's tail to catch it and whether tonight there would not be less illumination in the sky than among the hotel roof parties watching the sky. But there were thousands about town who were not afraid to say they are afraid.

Over on the east side, especially among the older men and women, there was no doubt today that there will be more peace of mind as soon as the earth and the comet have said good-by for seventy-five years. In the negro colony around San Juan hill white teeth were bared in a grin when questions were asked concerning fears of the comet, but the grins were quickly replaced by anxious fear of the questions from the negroes which showed that they flatly welcomed any reassuring information, despite their air of bravado.

BALLINGER AND GEO. W. PERKINS

Kerby Shows Relation Between The Two.

THE EXPLOITING OF ALASKA

Examination of Dismissed Stenographer Leads to the Introduction of Letters That Had Passed Between J. P. Morgan's Man and the Secretary of the Interior Last Summer, Bearing Upon Exploitation of Alaskan Mining and Railroad Properties.

Washington, May 18.—Frederick M. Kerby, a stenographer who was dismissed by Secretary Ballinger because of his charges in regard to the so-called Lawler memorandum, took the stand before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee and under the guidance of Attorney Brandeis, embellished his previous statement.

Oscar Lawler, the assistant attorney general of the interior department, who was designated by President Taft to write the exoneration letter "as if he himself were president," was also on the witness stand, and between the two they produced the greatest stir that has occurred at any session of the committee.

Before the day was over the president's name had frequently been drawn into the controversy; the lie had been passed between witness and counsel; members of the committee had clashed; a witness had been compelled to apologize for intemperate language, and the women spectators had been aroused to a demonstration which led to a call for a capitol policeman to maintain order.

Stump speeches from the witness stand, from attorneys and from the committee table were common occurrences in the course of the day, and so intense was the feeling aroused over the attempt of Attorney Brandeis to discredit President Taft in the present muddle that Senator Root was twice stirred to the point where he thumped the table vigorously and denounced the attack upon the president.

The developments of the day showed plainly that the Glavis-Garfield-Pinchot combination intends to use Stenographer Kerby for the purpose of bringing out further confidential information which he has in his possession in regard to the affairs of the interior department.

Kerby testified that Mr. Ballinger had planned to supplant F. H. Newell, director of the reclamation service, by R. H. Thompson, former city engineer of Seattle. This testimony furnished the pretext for calling for letters that had passed between Mr. Thompson and Mr. Ballinger and between Secretary Ballinger and George W. Perkins of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co.

The letters showed that Secretary Ballinger had endeavored to get Engineer Thompson to accompany George W. Perkins on an Alaskan trip last summer. This trip as Secretary Ballinger outlined it in confidential communications was for the purpose of exploiting Alaskan mining and railroad properties.

It had been the contention of the Glavis-Pinchot combination that Secretary Ballinger was playing into the hands of the Morgan-Guggenheim syndicate in the matter of the Cunningham-Alaskan coal claims, and the introduction of this letter is a sharp move on the part of Attorney Brandeis to emphasize this charge.

Young Kerby appeared almost like a fanatic on the witness stand, declaring again and again that he was a martyr to the truth. He is a young man and held his own in fencing with Senator Root and other able lawyers on the committee.

It was after Lawler had accused Garfield and Pinchot of having corrupted the youthful stenographer that the women supporters of the former secretary of the interior and the former forester hissed. This irritated Lawler to such a degree that he turned on them with this remark: "Snakes and geese make noises like that."

When Lawler took the stand all signs pointed to a storm. He was mad and quickly showed it. Mr. Lawler told of his return from Beverly under instructions from the president to prepare the summary and how he had set about his work with Stenographers Kerby and Massey.

"The document was prepared without consultation with a single person under heaven," declared Lawler, with his first display of heat, "and the statement (referring to Kerby's statement) that I consulted with Secretary Ballinger or Finney, or Schwartz, or Dennett, or Pierce, is an absolute and unequivocal falsehood." In explanation why he had ordered the rough drafts of the document burned, Lawler said that he was impressed with the idea that he should leave no chance for anybody to learn anything about the preparation of the document. "For months," he said, "I had been positive that men had been gumshoeing around after me, following every move I made, and I was not going to give them a chance to learn anything if I could help it."

"Who were those gumshoers?" interrupted a member of the committee. "There's one of them," said Lawler, pointing dramatically to Attorney Brandeis. "That man Hapgood (the editor of Collier's) is another, and that man Connelly (a magazine writer)—and to show you the kind they are,

GEORGE W. PERKINS

Morgan's Man Who Has Been Brought Into Ballinger Case.

Connolly is a man who trampled women and children under his feet in a fight for the lifeboats on a sinking steamer. But that man (again pointing at Brandeis) is the flower of the foul flock that has been setting detectives to dog the steps of honest men and stopping at nothing in a despicable and cowardly attempt to assassinate character." Mr. Lawler added that Kerby had been "corrupted" to make his statement.

"You realize that you are under oath and do you mean to have that statement about corrupting witnesses stand as a part of your testimony?" asked Representative Graham.

"I do," replied Lawler, emphatically. Representative Graham: "Who are these corrupters?"

Mr. Lawler, with every evidence of intense feeling, raised his voice as he replied: "I mean James R. Garfield and Gifford Pinchot, and their agent—this man Brandeis."

Before he could finish his sentence it was drowned in a storm of hisses and cat-calls from the women among the spectators. It was at this point that Lawler made his comment about snakes and geese making noises like that.

Lawler denied emphatically that there had been any suppression of his memorandum by the interior department. He characterized as an unequivocal falsehood Kerby's statement that there had been a copy of the memorandum in the interior department or that it had disappeared from the files.

Lawyer Brandeis in cross-examining Lawler took up his various calls for documents framed to bring about the production of the Lawler memorandum. Lawler recalled them all and said that they had been brought to his attention at the department, and he also identified his replies to the committee.

"In this answer of yours," said Mr. Brandeis, indicating one in the record, "you knew that you were evading the call of the committee?"

"I did not evade it," retorted Lawler vehemently, "and your implication that I was guilty of an evasion is a lie."

"Now, I call upon the chairman to admonish the witness," began Mr. Brandeis.

After much wrangling Mr. Lawler offered his amends to the committee.

S. S. S. CURES OLD BLOOD TROUBLES

The only possible way to cure Contagious Blood poison is to remove the cause by purifying the blood. This is just what S. S. S. does; and it is the only medicine that absolutely and thoroughly cleanses the circulation of every particle of the germs and virus of the disease. Mercury, Potash, and other strong minerals are often used in the hope that such powerful treatment will kill the germs, but this can not be done, and when the mineral medicines are left off the trouble always returns with its aggravating symptoms of ulcerated mouth and throat, skin eruptions, falling hair, yellow skin blotches, swollen glands, and often running sores. The ability of S. S. S. to cure Contagious Blood Poison comes from its unflinching blood-purifying properties. It goes into the circulation and removes every trace of the infection, makes the blood rich and healthy, and leaves no dregs of the virus to break out later on. S. S. S. does not contain a particle of mineral in any form, but is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks each of which has a direct and specific action in cleansing the blood. In addition it contains the extracts of certain botanical herbs which make it the finest of all tonics, which is a necessary quality for a medicine in curing Contagious Blood Poison. Home Treatment book, containing much valuable information and instruction to be found nowhere else, will be sent sealed and post paid, free to all who write and request it.

WILLIAM H. ROBERTS

Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Legislative Body of the Presbyterian Church Gathering at Seashore.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 18.—Arrangements for the meeting of the general assembly, the highest legislative body of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, which will convene here tomorrow for a ten days' session, are about completed and most of the commissioners are on the ground. All sessions of the assembly will be held on the steel pier and there will be about 900 delegates.

One of the first things the general assembly will have to do will be to elect a moderator. Among the candidates mentioned thus far are the Rev. Dr. George Alexander of New York city; the Rev. Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield, president of Lafayette college; the Rev. Dr. Charles Little of Wabash, Ind.; the Rev. Dr. Robert MacKenzie, secretary of the college board, New York city, and the Rev. Dr. Zenos, a professor in McCormick seminary, Chicago.

The general assembly will be opened at 11 a. m., tomorrow, with the annual sermon by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Barclay of Detroit, the retiring moderator. The election of a moderator will take place in the afternoon of the same day.

Lioness Swiped Trainer.

New York, May 16.—Duchess, a lioness whose temper has not yet become dulled with much exhibiting, felled Peter Taylor, her trainer, during one of the performances before a large Sunday afternoon crowd at Bostock's animal show in Dreamland, Coney Island, and had her muzzle groping for his throat when emergency men with steel spears prodded her away and saved the trainer. Taylor had his left arm ripped open from elbow to wrist by the one vicious swipe he received from the lioness.

It Was a Mistrial.

Jeffersonville, Ind., May 16.—The jury which tried the case of Walter Gwin, charged with a criminal assault on Miss Mary Lesch, failed to agree and was discharged. Both Gwin and Miss Lesch are members of well-known families of Sellersburg, and the trial attracted much attention.

Corydon, Ind., May 16.—The grand jury has returned bills against certain persons for complicity in the recent plot to release Thomas J. Hoal, the "boy bandit," from jail, and for obvious reasons the officials refuse to reveal the names of those indicted.

Return Home.

The interurban special carrying the party of business men from Utica, N. Y., passed through this city Tuesday evening on the return trip. They will go to Cleveland and Detroit before reaching their home city. When the plans for the trip were made, several weeks ago, the committee on transportation asked concerning the interurban connections to Chicago, and were informed that the trip could not be made to that city. When they reached here they were surprised to learn that the connecting roads had been completed and that a car could be run from Louisville to Chicago.

Jubilee Pony Arrives.

The pony which was purchased by the First Battalion of Seymour to advertise the Fourth of July celebration and military jubilee, has arrived here from Washington, Ill., and will be allowed to rest for a week or so before it is brought out on the streets much.

E. M. Hobbs was here from Bloomington this morning on business.

Love and Finance.

Omaha folks are telling of the ardent wooing of a belle of that town by an Italian count, whom the young lady met last year while touring the continent with her mother. The count hastened to America soon after the arrival home of the object of his attention and, presenting himself at the Omaha office of the father, unburdened himself of his sentiments.

"I love her! I love her!" he exclaimed dramatically. "I desire her much to marry her!"

The old man eyed the titled person narrowly. "Well, count," he finally asked in a resigned way, "what are your lowest terms?"—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

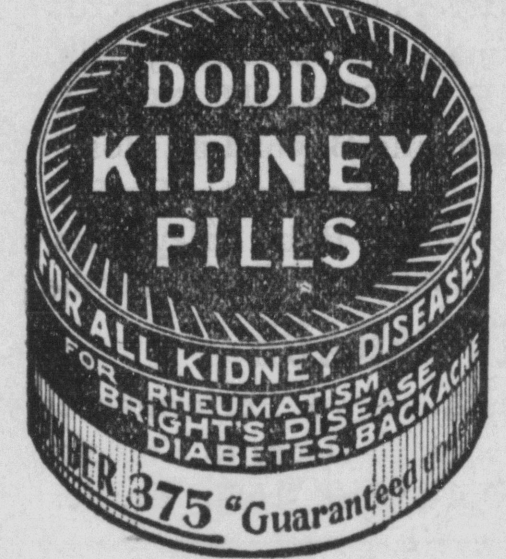

Probably for the Trust.

"Hello, old chap! I haven't seen you for a year. Where have you been?"

"Down in South America."

"South America? What have you been doing there?"

"O—er—just rubbering around."—Chicago Tribune.

Unusual.
Corporal of the Guard—Sentry, port arms! Give up your orders!
Sentry proceeds to give over his orders until he comes to the hackneyed "in case of fire or any unusual occurrence immediately alarm the guard."
Officer of the Day (to sentry)—What would you call an unusual occurrence, my man?
Sentry—Well, sir, if I were to walk to the far end of my post and turned round and found the sentry box marking time I should call that an unusual occurrence.—London Answers.

Lake Huron and Lake Superior.

New steamers have been added to the Northern Navigation Co.'s fleet, and the finest and fastest vessels on the Great Lakes will fly the house flag of this popular company. The steamers run in connection with the Grand Trunk Railway System, and all particulars, rates and descriptive literature, etc., can be had for the asking by applying to W. S. Cookson, 917 Merchants Loan & Trust Building, Chicago.

Hen Adopts Kittens.
A hen with unrequited maternal instinct has adopted a novel family at the home of Mrs. "Jim" Griffin, in South Calhoun street, a Fort Worth correspondent of the New York Herald says. She has taken unto herself a "brood" of kittens and is looking after their welfare with all the solicitude of a mother for her first born. The kittens appear to like their foster mother, and even the real maternal ancestor of the felines displays no jealousy over the affection shown by her offspring for the feathered protector.

The hen has been trying to "set" for weeks. Recently when Mrs. Griffin visited the poultry yard she was surprised to see three kittens curled up in the nest. Later she investigated and found the kittens, the mother cat and the hen all cuddled up together. They were as friendly as sailors at the new family arrangement. This story not being a nature fake, the kittens do not eat worms or corn.

Only an Imitator.

"Lead it? No, I merely follow it."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS:

LOBSTER RISsoles.

Mince the meat of a boiled lobster, mix with it the coral, pounded smooth, and the mashed yolks of 4 hard-boiled eggs. Make a batter of 4 eggs, 8 tablespoonsful of milk, 4 tablespoonsful of flour; beat until light, then stir in gradually the lobster mixture; when stiff enough, shape into small oval balls and fry in hot fat. Drain on a paper, transfer to a hot platter, garnish with lobster claws and sprigs of curled parsley. Serve with stewed peas and cheese straws.—Mrs. Helen A. Wright in the Boston Post.

STUFFED TOMATOES.

Be sure to use good, solid tomatoes—1 piece for each person in the family is usually enough, if they are fair-sized fruit; cut a slice from the blossom end of each tomato and scrape out the inside; chop fine about a cupful of veal and a small onion; add to it the scooped tomato, 1-2 cup of hot water and a little salt and pepper; let it cook gently for a minute or so; thicken with cracker crumbs and, when cool, stuff your tomatoes with it; sprinkle cracker crumbs over the tops of tomatoes, also a bit of butter for one, and bake until brown on top.—Edith Kelso in the Boston Post.

SPOON DUMPLINGS.

Two pounds breast of lamb, cover it with water closely. Let it simmer 20 minutes, now take off the scum and add 1 tablespoonful of salt and 1 quart of shelled peas. Cover closely again and let the meat and peas cook 1-2 hour; now add 6 new small potatoes; cook 10 minutes. Now add your dumplings. Mix 1 pint of flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 level teaspoons baking powder with 1 cup of milk. Drop them from a spoon and cook closely covered 10 minutes. Now put dumplings on a platter with the lamb, peas and potatoes in the centre. Mix a tablespoonful of flour and butter together, add to the gravy and serve. Sometimes I make a veal stew in the same way, and it is good.—Mrs. C. E. Wendell in the Boston Post.

WASHINGTON SALAD.

This delicious new salad is especially attractive. Wash four medium-sized blood beets and cut into small pieces; place in a stew pan with one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of chopped pepper, three tablespoonsful of sugar, one saltspoonful of salt, one bay leaf, four cloves, and three peppercorns; pour over all one pint of cold water and cook slowly until the beets are tender, then add one-half cup of lemon juice. Soak one large tablespoonful of granulated gelatin in a little cold water two minutes, then strain the hot mixture over it. Blend thoroughly, and strain again. Turn into individual moulds and set on ice until firm. Serve on ribboned lettuce.—Harper's Bazar.

DELICIOUS TURKEY CROQUETTES

Take the scraps you have put aside for mincing and put them through your meat chopper, using a medium knife. Allow 1 cupful of meat to 1 cupful of milk. Take 2 heaping tablespoons of flour, 1 heaping tablespoon of butter, 1 small teaspoon of chopped parsley, 1 small teaspoon of salt, about 1 teaspoon of onion juice, a dash of cayenne pepper. Beat the flour and butter together until they form a smooth paste, and stir into the boiling milk, beating it until perfectly mixed. Add the seasoning and allow it to cool and then add the minced meat. When perfectly cold mould it into any shape desired, dip in white of egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in boiling fat. I always drain my croquettes on a piece of tissue paper or a paper napkin. Garnish with parsley or celery tips and serve very hot. These are delicious and nice for lunch.—Mattie E. Flynn, in the Boston Post.

HINTS.

If new gloves are placed between the folds of a damp towel for an hour before being worn they are much easier to put on. The damp causes the kid to become more pliable so that they will stretch to the required shape without cracking or splitting.

Creaking doors will cease to be noisy if the hinges are rubbed with soap or graphite.

One-half cup coarse starch dissolved in cold water, pour boiling to it, add a piece of paraffine size of a nutmeg; let boil 10 minutes.

Gloves spotted from damp weather may be cleaned with a little gum ammoniac. Put a little of the gum in the bottom of the glove box, lay a paper over it, and then the gloves. Cover tightly and leave undisturbed for several days. If the gum is kept in the glove box it will prevent the spotting.

Put butter in a bowl and work with a wooden spoon until the butter is of a soft creamy consistency. Should butter milk exude it should be poured off.

Creaking doors will cease to be noisy if the hinges are rubbed with soap or graphite.

One-half cup coarse starch dissolved in cold water, pour boiling to it, add a piece of paraffine size of a nutmeg; let boil 10 minutes.

Gloves spotted from damp weather may be cleaned with a little gum ammoniac. Put a little of the gum in the bottom of the glove box, lay a paper over it, and then the gloves. Cover tightly and leave undisturbed for several days. If the gum is kept in the glove box it will prevent the spotting.

Put butter in a bowl and work with a wooden spoon until the butter is of a soft creamy consistency. Should butter milk exude it should be poured off.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS:

LOBSTER RISsoles.

Mince the meat of a boiled lobster, mix with it the coral, pounded smooth, and the mashed yolks of 4 hard-boiled eggs. Make a batter of 4 eggs, 8 tablespoonsful of milk, 4 tablespoonsful of flour; beat until light, then stir in gradually the lobster mixture; when stiff enough, shape into small oval balls and fry in hot fat. Drain on a paper, transfer to a hot platter, garnish with lobster claws and sprigs of curled parsley. Serve with stewed peas and cheese straws.—Mrs. Helen A. Wright in the Boston Post.

STUFFED TOMATOES.

Be sure to use good, solid tomatoes—1 piece for each person in the family is usually enough, if they are fair-sized fruit; cut a slice from the blossom end of each tomato and scrape out the inside; chop fine about a cupful of veal and a small onion; add to it the scooped tomato, 1-2 cup of hot water and a little salt and pepper; let it cook gently for a minute or so; thicken with cracker crumbs and, when cool, stuff your tomatoes with it; sprinkle cracker crumbs over the tops of tomatoes, also a bit of butter for one, and bake until brown on top.—Edith Kelso in the Boston Post.

SPOON DUMPLINGS.

Two pounds breast of lamb, cover it with water closely. Let it simmer 20 minutes, now take off the scum and add 1 tablespoonful of salt and 1 quart of shelled peas. Cover closely again and let the meat and peas cook 1-2 hour; now add 6 new small potatoes; cook 10 minutes. Now add your dumplings. Mix 1 pint of flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 level teaspoons baking powder with 1 cup of milk. Drop them from a spoon and cook closely covered 10 minutes. Now put dumplings on a platter with the lamb, peas and potatoes in the centre. Mix a tablespoonful of flour and butter together, add to the gravy and serve. Sometimes I make a veal stew in the same way, and it is good.—Mrs. C. E. Wendell in the Boston Post.

CANTON SHAKEN
BY EXPLOSIONThirty Killed When Tinplate Mill
Boilers Let Go.

MILL PRACTICALLY DESTROYED

Seven Big Boilers Exploded Simultaneously and of the Hundred or More Workmen in the Plant at the Time Scarce a Dozen Escaped Injury, Thirty Being Killed Outright, in Many Cases Bodies Being Blown to Atoms.

Canton, O., May 18.—In a boiler explosion at the plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate company on South Harrison avenue, Tuesday afternoon, twenty-five or thirty men were killed and many injured. Over 100 men were in the mill at the time of the explosion, and it is not believed that more than a dozen escaped injury. A large number of these are mortally injured. Seven boilers of 1,200 horsepower each exploded simultaneously in an L-shaped addition near the middle of the main mill. All employees connected with that department were blown to atoms, it is believed.

The dead bodies strewn about where they were thrown by the force of the explosion presented the most ghastly spectacle that Canton has ever witnessed. Many are thought to be buried in the debris which caught fire immediately after the explosion. It is believed, however, that the flames were extinguished before they reached any of the injured men.

One body was thrown by the force of the explosion through the side of the home of Henry Ruke, a square and a half away from the wrecked plant. The body passed through the house and came out on the other side. It landed on a fence and knocked it down. Another body was picked up at the plant of the Timken Roller Bearing Axle company, a half mile away from the scene of the explosion. A human hand crashed through the window of an office seventy feet away.

The cause of the explosion is unknown. The boilers were supposed to be in good shape. The men had no warning. The members of the office force escaped injury. The whole side of the plant was blown out by the explosion. Windows were broken in all houses within a radius of half a mile. The whole section in the vicinity of the plant is strewn with debris.

Louis Hughes, a fireman, and A. W. Kaufman, storekeeper, were standing in the storehouse, 200 feet away from the main plant, at the time of the explosion. The storehouse was completely demolished, but both men escaped death. Kaufman had only a few cuts and bruises, while Hughes sustained a broken leg. The mill is practically a wreck, the engine being blown to smithereens. The shell of the boiler was blown a distance of 600 feet.

IT WAS AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY

Court's Ruling In Conflict Between Rivals For Place.

AN INTERESTING CONTENTION

With Rival Claimants for Position of Custodian of Indiana Statehouse Awaiting the Decision of Supreme Court, a Sort of Agreement Was Entered Into to Divide Salary, but the Court Holds That Such a Compact Could Not Stand.

Noblesville, Ind., May 18.—Judge Vestal has rendered a ruling in the case of Thomas F. Colbert of Indianapolis against Charles J. Wheeler, sustaining the demurrer to the complaint, thus holding the contract between the two men null and void. Colbert was formerly superintendent of the Indianapolis police department, and several months ago was a candidate in opposition to Wheeler for custodian of the statehouse. He was appointed by Governor Marshall, while Secretary of State Fred Sims and Auditor of State John B. Heimer appointed Wheeler to the same position. The latter entered upon his duties and then the question arose as to who had the authority to make the appointment, the governor, as had been the custom for many years, or the secretary of state and the auditor. It was finally agreed to allow the supreme court to pass on the law, and, according to Colbert's complaint, he and Wheeler entered into an agreement to divide the custodian's salary pending a decision on the appeal. The defendant admitted that there was some talk about a division of the salary, but denied that they reached an agreement. The supreme court passed on the question and held with Wheeler. This action was followed by Colbert's suit to recover half of Wheeler's salary.

In ruling on the case Judge Vestal said the principal flaw he observed in the litigation was that such a contract, if one really existed, would be decidedly against public policy.

REVIVING MEMORIES

Comet's Last Engagement Recalled by the Princess Kil-so-Quah.

Huntington, Ind., May 18.—"When big comet came before, Indian braves climb up on top of high hills and shoot at him every night; medicine men make big noises and Indians think end of world are come; little one run—oh, so quick—and hide by side of old squaws."

In these words Kil-so-Quah, the granddaughter of Chief Little Turtle of the Miamis, and the only living princess of Indian royal blood in the state, told of the appearance of the heavenly wanderer on his visit seventy-five years ago.

The old Indian woman's birthday comes "Some time in this, the strawberry moon," and she is now at the century mark, hale in health and clear in memory, and especially regarding the events of the former day when Indians and French traders were the only inhabitants of the northern part of the state.

ROOSEVELT INVITED

Richmond Fall Festival Promoters After Big Attraction.

Richmond, Ind., May 18.—Promoters of the Richmond fall festival cabled Colonel Roosevelt while he was at Copenhagen recently inviting him to attend the fall festival, and yesterday received reply: "Impossible to answer until I get home—Roosevelt."

The tenor of the answer has filled the promoters with hope, as they really expected that he would say that it would be impossible for him to come. In event he can come the event will be made a notable one. A local committee will probably be appointed to wait upon him upon his arrival home.

Tariff Was Not Mentioned.

Bloomington, Ind., May 18.—State Senator Oscar Bland of Linton was nominated for congress by acclamation by the Republicans of the Second congressional district at the convention held in this city. A platform was adopted indorsing the official record of Senator Beveridge, but no mention was made of the tariff law.

Took Only the Choicest Goods.

Indianapolis, May 18.—The William Laurie dry goods store was robbed of more than $650 worth of silk by ingenious burglars, who had an eye for choice dry goods. Entrance was obtained through the skylight, the robber dropping down to the floor by the aid of a rope. Only the choicest of the silks were taken.

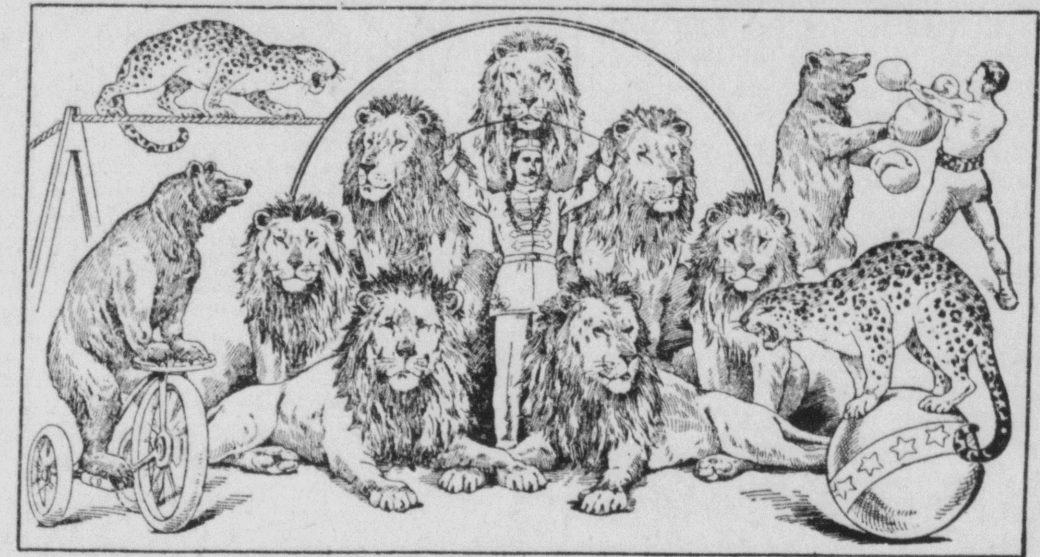

Second View Was Fatal.

Evansville, Ind., May 18.—Henry Dyer, aged ninety-one, is dead of pneumonia contracted Thursday morning when he went out of doors in pajamas to see Halley's comet. He saw the comet of 1835 and was anxious to get a view of this one.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

Huntington, Ind., May 18.—E. K. Haney, a prominent farmer of this county, was killed in a runaway accident.

HOPING TO PUSH
THINGS ALONGLeaders in Congress Preparing For Adjournment.

ON OR ABOUT FIRST OF JULY

It is Now the Expectation That, With the Holding of Night Sessions, the Legislative Program Can Be Completed and Congress Be Ready to Adjourn Before Sizzling Summer Days Make Life in Washington a Burden.

Washington, May 16.—Unless difficulties now unforeseen present themselves, senate and house leaders believe that congress will adjourn on or about July 1. With a view to expediting business, it is the purpose soon to hold night sessions. They are hoping that the mercury in the Washington thermometer will begin to climb within a few days. With night sessions, hot weather and members desiring to get back with the home folks, no doubt is expressed that the lawmakers will be ready to quit certainly by July 1 and possibly the last week in June. After the railroad bill has been passed by the senate that body will get down to the consideration of appropriation bills.

A date will be fixed this week for a Republican house caucus on the postal savings bank bill. A compromise is about to be reached on this measure that it is expected will prove satisfactory in the main to the great majority of house Republicans. Up to date not a single administration bill of the first importance has been passed by the two houses of congress. The house has passed two conservation bills, one authorizing the president to withdraw lands in his discretion and the other authorizing agricultural entries on the surface of lands bearing coal. The house also has passed the railroad bill. It has taken no action on the postal savings banks bill, which will, however, soon be reached. It has also put through the statehood bill.

All of the administration measures that have not been passed have been sent to committees in the respective houses. The anti-injunction bill will follow the postal savings bank bill in the house. This bill appears to have few friends in either house, and if it is passed it will only be after constant urging of the president. This bill also may be considered at a caucus of the house Republicans.

A conference of house and senate leaders will be held this week in an effort to fix up a comprehensive program under which the various administration bills shall be hastened to conference. As things now stand the administration insists upon the passage of only five bills, namely, the railroad bill, the postal savings bank bill, the anti-injunction measure, the withdrawal bill and the statehood bill. The belief is general that compromises will come out of conferences on the railroad and postal savings bank, and the anti-injunction measure will pass substantially as it has been reported by the house committee on judiciary. No effort will be made to pass general conservation legislation at this time. The administration has lost hope of getting any enactment along this line aside from a bill authorizing the president to withdraw for purposes of conservation water-power sites, coal, oil and forest land, embraced in the public domain. The present political situation augurs ill for the statehood bill.
